Jean-Paul Sartre's No Exit directed by Carrieanne Vivianette

Jean-Paul Sartre's existential masterpiece No Exit follows the fates of three damned souls. Estelle, Inez and Garcin find themselves beyond death in a drawing room. These individuals have been carefully selected and abandoned with each other so as to produce a cruel and personalised afterlife situation. They facilitate their own Hell as they play out fraught interactions of denial, struggle for autonomy, penance, and the desire for escape; what they are condemned to endure is each other. Here. For eternity.

"Hell is other people"

Leeds Arts Centre's claustrophobic and captivating reincarnation of No Exit will be presented in the Studio at the Carriageworks theatre. The result is a thoroughly absorbing and often terrifying reminder of the challenge to create harmony with others.
