Neil Rathmell's new play, Rough Sleepers, is set in an overgrown graveyard outside a disused chapel. Just the place for a 'gentleman of the road' to take shelter for the winter with only the quiet sleepers in their graves for company. The vicar makes him welcome, but some of her parishioners take a different view.

Just right for the Hallowe'en season, with humour and pathos, thunder and lightning, birdsong, music and pyrotechnics! This is the third time Leeds Arts Centre has premiered one of Neil Rathmell's plays.

Unspoken - the story of a man and his stammer

 July 2017 "The way you captured the struggle of stuttering was beautiful."

It's A Miracle -

July 2018 "Brilliantly written. Really enjoyed it!"

An experienced director, as well as playwright and published author, Neil Rathmell's last production was a play on the theme of gender inequality, written and performed during the course of a residency at Punjabi University, Patiala, India.
